

Bartending (Presentation #9)

Special Topics (CS3001)

Illya Starikov

A Brief Introduction

Disclaimer: I am 21.

A Brief Introduction

I got onto a streak of cool bartending videos earlier in the semesters, such as:

- This one.
- This one.
- This one.

Inspired by this, I wanted to become a decent bartender. First, I knew I had to get some supplies.

A Brief Introduction

Figure: Some of the Alcohol Necessary For Bartending

A Brief Introduction

Figure: Some of the Tools Necessary For Bartending

Prior Knowledge

- I did not have much prior knowledge to this.

Goals

- To become well acquainted with some of the more famous cocktails and what is in them.
- To become make these drinks with some flair.

Resources

- To learn the mechanics of bartending, a lot of it came from practice and YouTube.
 - How to pour.
 - How to flip pour.
 - How to set up a bar.
- I also picked up a book to passively read: Liquid Intelligence.

Goal Accomplishment

- I have learned how to make several of the famous cocktails relatively well.
- Some of them were very easy.
 - Screw Driver
 - Fuzzy Naval
 - Sex on the Beach
- Some of them were more difficult to make.¹
 - Mojitos
 - Mai Tai
 - Martini

Goal Accomplishment

- I also learned how to do some of the cool bar tricks in the previous videos.

Lessons Learned

Aside from the cocktails I made, there were some lessons I learned.

- The real difference between shaken and stirred and how it effects a drink.
- How much ice can effect a cocktail.
- What different liquor combinations can be combined to produce different flavors.

In Closing

All question, comments, and insults can be directed towards me:

 starikov@mst.edu

 Illya Starikov

 Illya Starikov

 FreneticArray.com